

To: Garrison, Geoffrey[Garrison.Geoffrey@epa.gov]
From: sueparten@aol.com
Sent: Thur 4/9/2015 7:56:15 PM
Subject: Sources / suppliers, and continued use in U.S. of CH₃BR

This database only gives one manufacturer (U.S.), but a number of "reagents" and distributors, including others in the U.S.

<http://www.molbase.com/en/cas-1111-88-2.html>

It's a relatively short boat ride to other potential sources in the Caribbean, with far lower import controls and standards than even the U.S. VI. Probably very naive to think that U.S. sources would be the only ones drawn upon. And also naive to think that we're still not using it a LOT in the U.S. See the article below from year 2011.

http://www.huffingtonpost.com/2011/09/07/methyl-bromide-ban-has-al_n_952380.html